Cell phone use should be severly restricted or banned on flights. There are many individuals who will ignore rules aimed at politeness, and no sane persons want to hear continuous incessant babble while flying. Maybe a strict three minute limit per 2 hours of flight would work if it was very strictly enforced. But I question whether enforcement could/would be maintained.